ANDREW LETTER'S SONG, 788-761 Broadway.

HIGH TENSION ELECTRIC WIRES

To THE PUBLIC: So much that is mislesding to those not familiar with electricity has appeared recently, that, as manu-facturers of high insulated wires, we deem it our duty to state a few plain facts.

High tension currents become just as harmless as low tension when the conductors for line construction are properly insulated. The fault lies in the fact that insulation suitable only for ordinary telegraph wires has heretofore been used for this work.

No one would think of using for the generation of high pressure steam a boiler made and intended for low pressure. The conductors used for low tension or 100 volts are almost valueless for high tension or 1,000 to 8,000 volts, as the latter currents demand not only a thicker insula-tion, but one having a high insula-tion resistance determined only after a severe test in water.

ORONITE Wires have an insulation resistance running as high as 10,000 megohms per mile after three days' test in water.

In our experience, extending over a wide field, with high tension currents conveyed through wires covered with OKONITE Insulation, amounting in sales to over 50,000,000 feet of wire, no person has ever been injured. Every company ex-clusively using this insulation can show a clean record.

The wires manufactured by us have just been awarded the Gold Medal at the Paris Exposition, and are used to a great extent in Brooklyn, Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City and many other cities, and such authorities as Professors Henry Morton, J. Hopkinson, Sir. William Thomson, E. Franklin, J. P. Barrett and others testify to the value and absolute safety of wires covered with Okonite Insulation.
